Economic Update

Labor market conditions in California and the U.S. improved further in 2015 while overall inflation remained low. California home building activity picked up pace in 2015 after an essentially flat 2014, while home sales ramped up in 2015 after slowing in the prior two years. U.S. real Gross Domestic Product increased 2.4 percent in 2015, matching the growth in 2014.

LABOR MARKET CONDITIONS

- California added 60,400 jobs in December after adding just 7,200 jobs in November.
- All major industry sectors, except mining and logging, gained jobs in December. The largest gains were in professional and business service (15,800) and construction (11,200). The other growth sectors included trade, transportation, and utilities (7,700), leisure and hospitality (6,800), information (5,000), financial activities (3,900), government (3,700), other services (2,700), educational and health services (2,100), and manufacturing (1,600). Mining and logging lost 100 jobs.
- Over 2015, California gained 459,400 nonfarm jobs—on par with the state’s job gains over each of the three prior years. California’s job growth rate of 2.9 percent exceeded the U.S. growth rate of 1.9 percent. Since 2012, the state has consistently gained jobs at a faster rate than the nation as a whole.
- California’s unemployment rate increased to 5.8 percent while the U.S. unemployment rate remained unchanged at 5.0 percent in December before falling to 4.9 percent in January. Over 2015, the California and U.S. unemployment rates dropped by 1.3 and 0.6 percentage points, respectively.

BUILDING ACTIVITY

- Residential permit issuance fell by 20 percent in December to a seasonally adjusted annual pace of 75,300 units. Permits for single-family and multifamily units dropped by 10 percent and 27 percent, respectively. Meanwhile, residential valuation grew by 5 percent while nonresidential valuation dropped by 4.8 percent in December.
- Residential building increased in 2015 by 12 percent compared to 2014, with a total of 96,000 units composed of nearly equal shares of single-family and multifamily units.
- The value of nonresidential permits rose by 17 percent to $24.8 billion.
